

Daily Planet

Customer and Employee Relations Directorate, Internal Relations and Communications Department

Wednesday, May 22

2002

O'Keefe planning on more teachers becoming astronauts

NASA Administrator Sean O'Keefe said he hopes to have at least one professional educator in each new astronaut class beginning this year. NASA plans to work with the Education Department to look for teachers who can meet the rigorous standards of fitness and proficiency required to become active participants on U.S. space missions. Barbara Morgan, a 50-year-old former teacher, is slated to become the first educator in space, perhaps as early as next year.

Marshall welcomes STS-110 crew Wednesday

No taxi service
Wednesday from 7
a.m. to 12:30 p.m.
and limited service
from 12:30-4:30 p.m.

Odom speaker at Marshall Association luncheon

Jim Odom, former director of science and engineering at Marshall and project manager for the Hubble Space Telescope, will speak on leadership ethics at Thursday's Marshall Association luncheon. The luncheon will be from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Redstone Officer's and Civilians' Club. Cost is $8 and reservations should be made by calling Cliff Bailey at 544-5482.

<http://inside.msfc.nasa.gov>